Experiment 2

NYC with strangers – social hacking exercise (?)

- No cellphone
- Meet a stranger
- Ask to take a selfie
- Ask to send it to your mail

The first stranger was Maelliz, we both were a little bit lost in the subway.
I ask her to take us a selfie and send it to my mail, the result was better than
I was expecting...

Hey Diana!

I hope you enjoy your trip in New York!!
Here is a little picture recording our adventure in the 14th station in manhattan, we where desesperently looking for the famous F train!!

I was glad to meet you and I hope you all the best in your trip!!

I love your idea for the selfies!! This is a great souvenir and I will keep this picture as a great meeting!!

Wish you all the best,

Maelliz (the French who lived in chile!!!!)

My Facebook: maelliz vallette, I will be delighted to keep on touch!!! :)

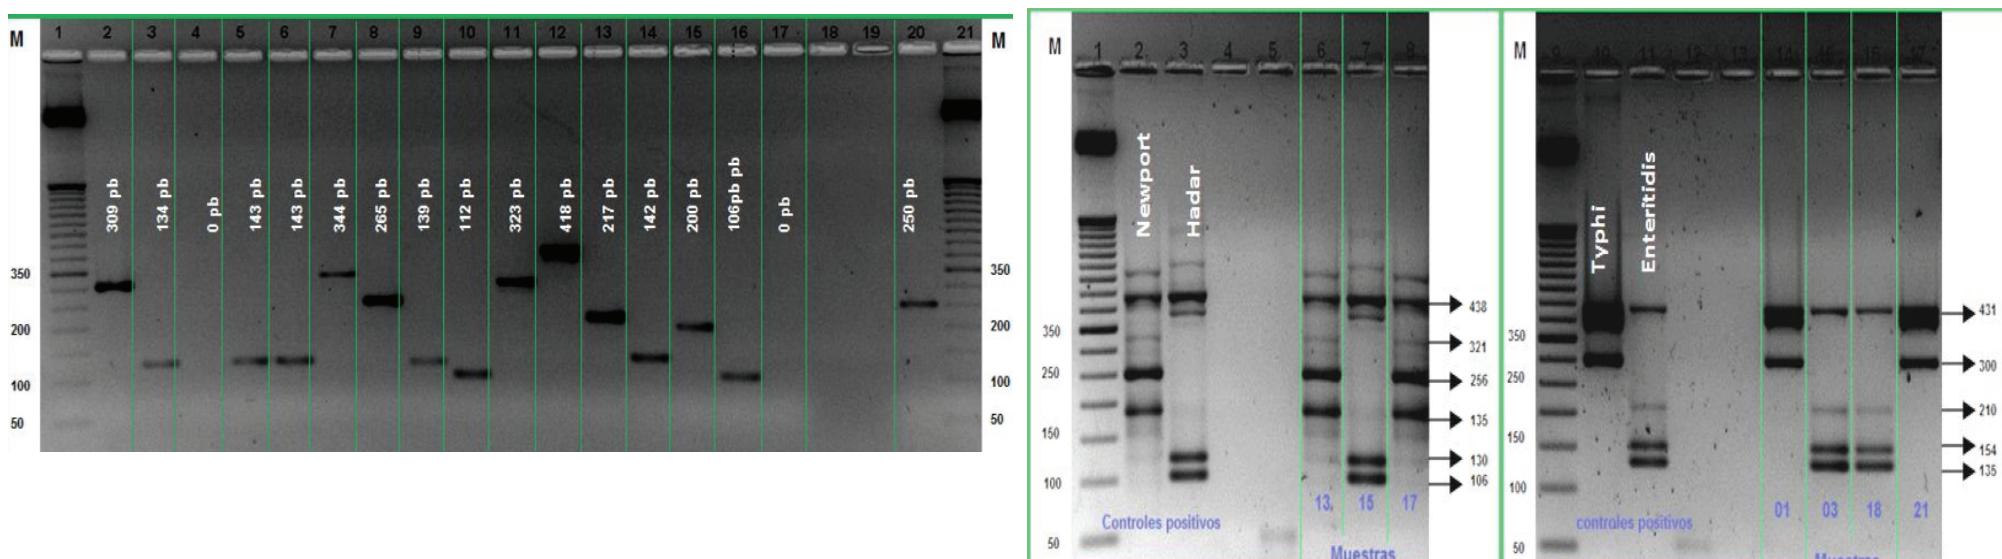

Besoos!

That's all for now, I just started yesterday.

SFPC Projects

What are the invisible orchestras that we are surrounded by?

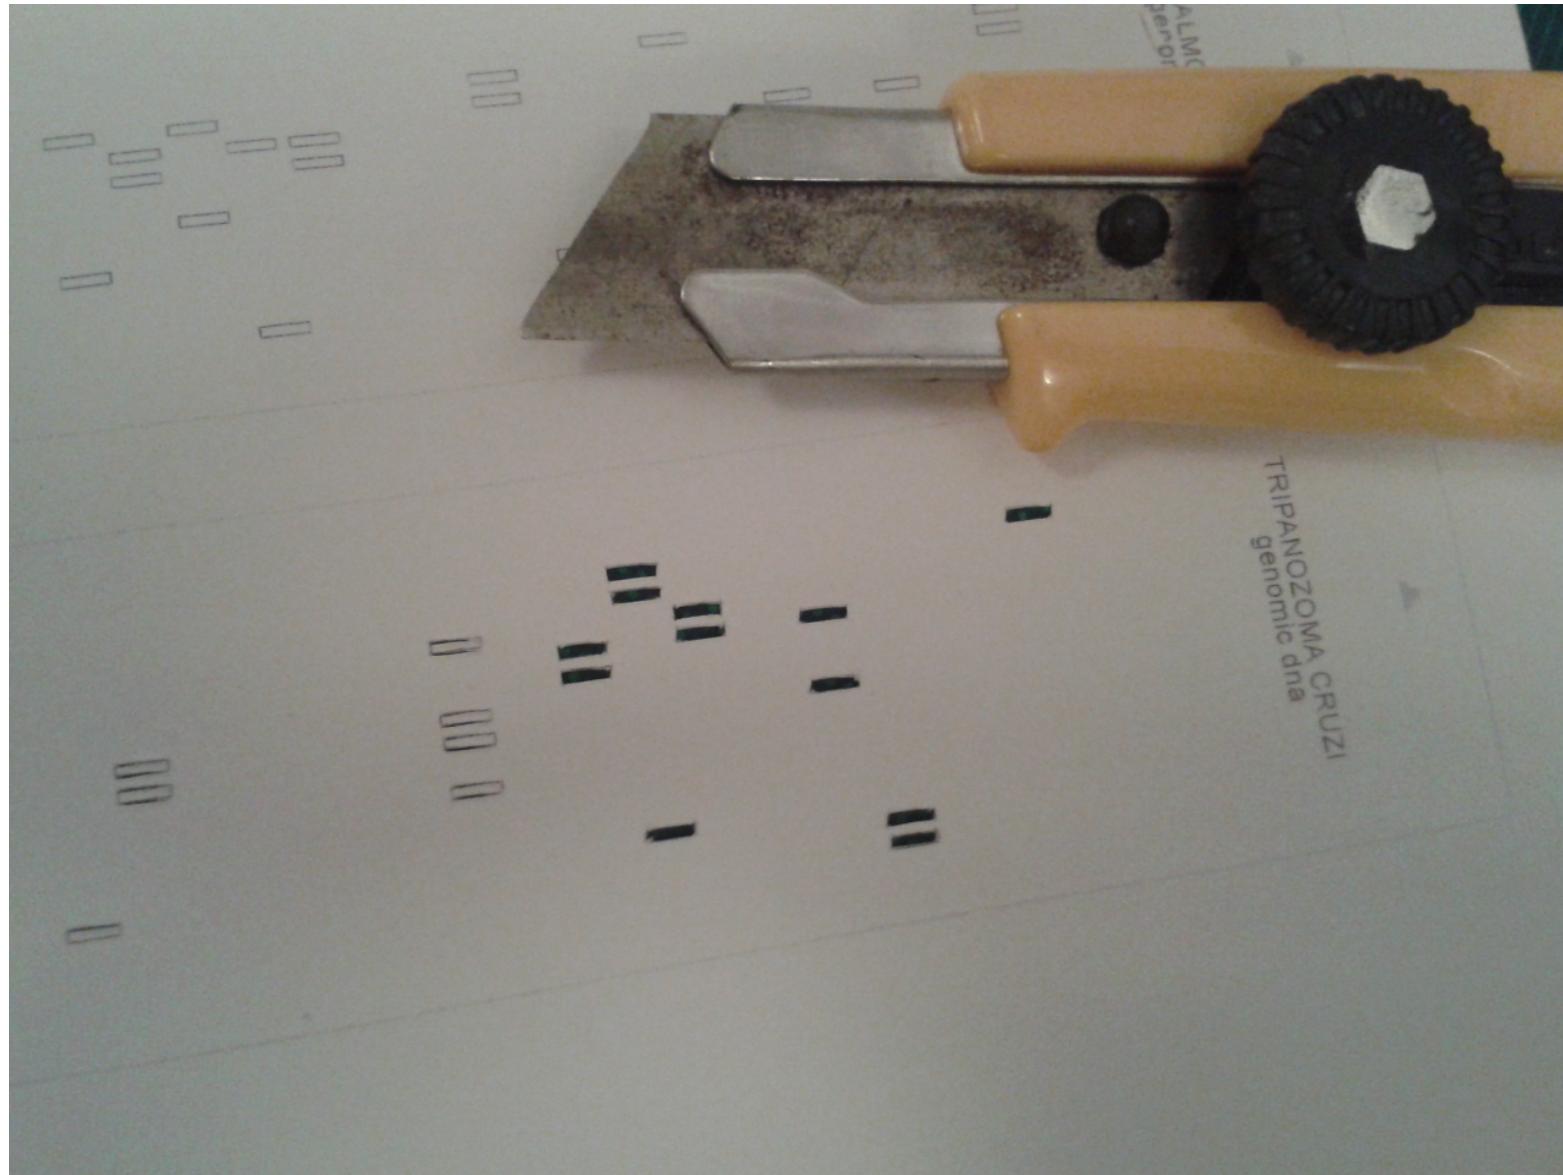

Project 1: Genetic Conversations

I take this PCR images from DNA samples and converted them into a paper piano roll to play it in a music box.

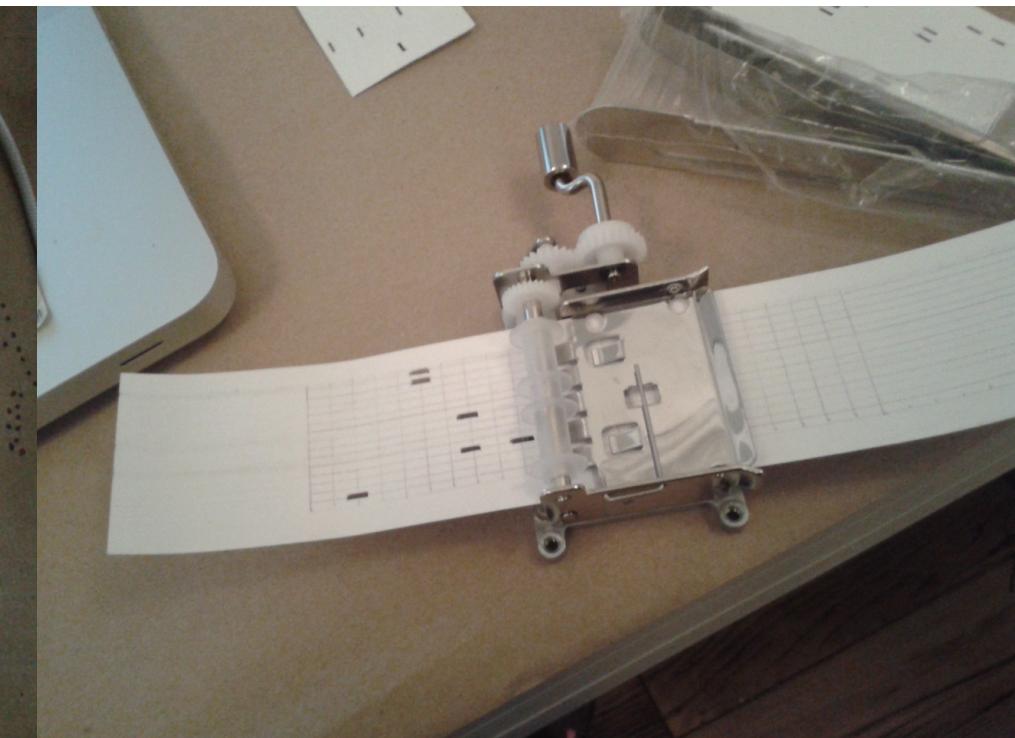

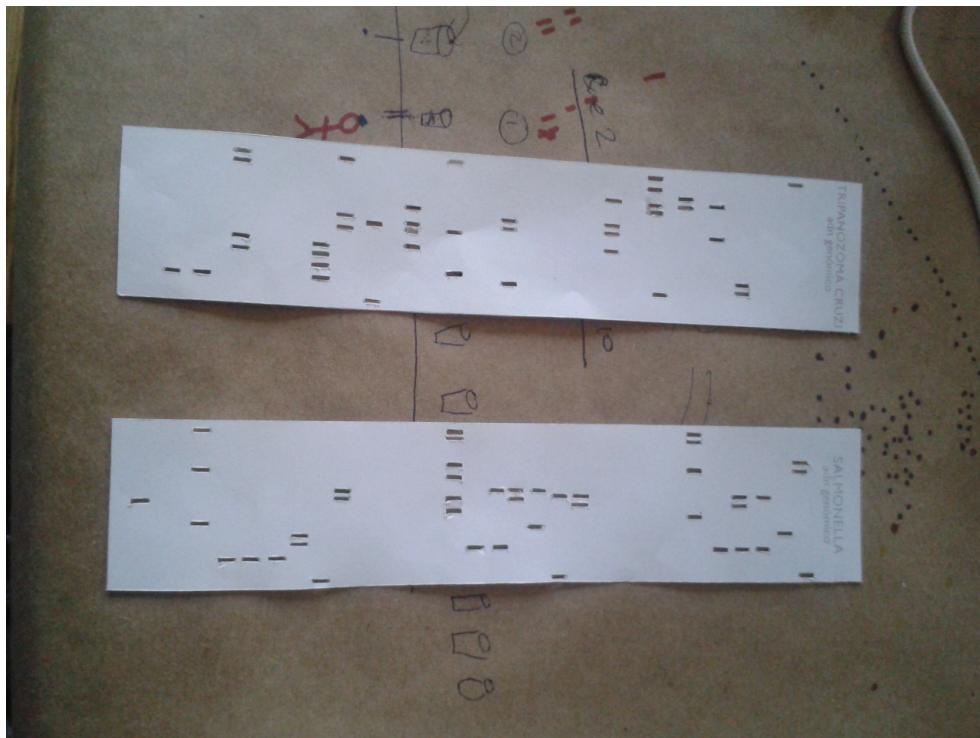

The concept behind is about despite of our differences we can have a conversation with an elephant or bacteria or another human being, trough sound.

Something of the process

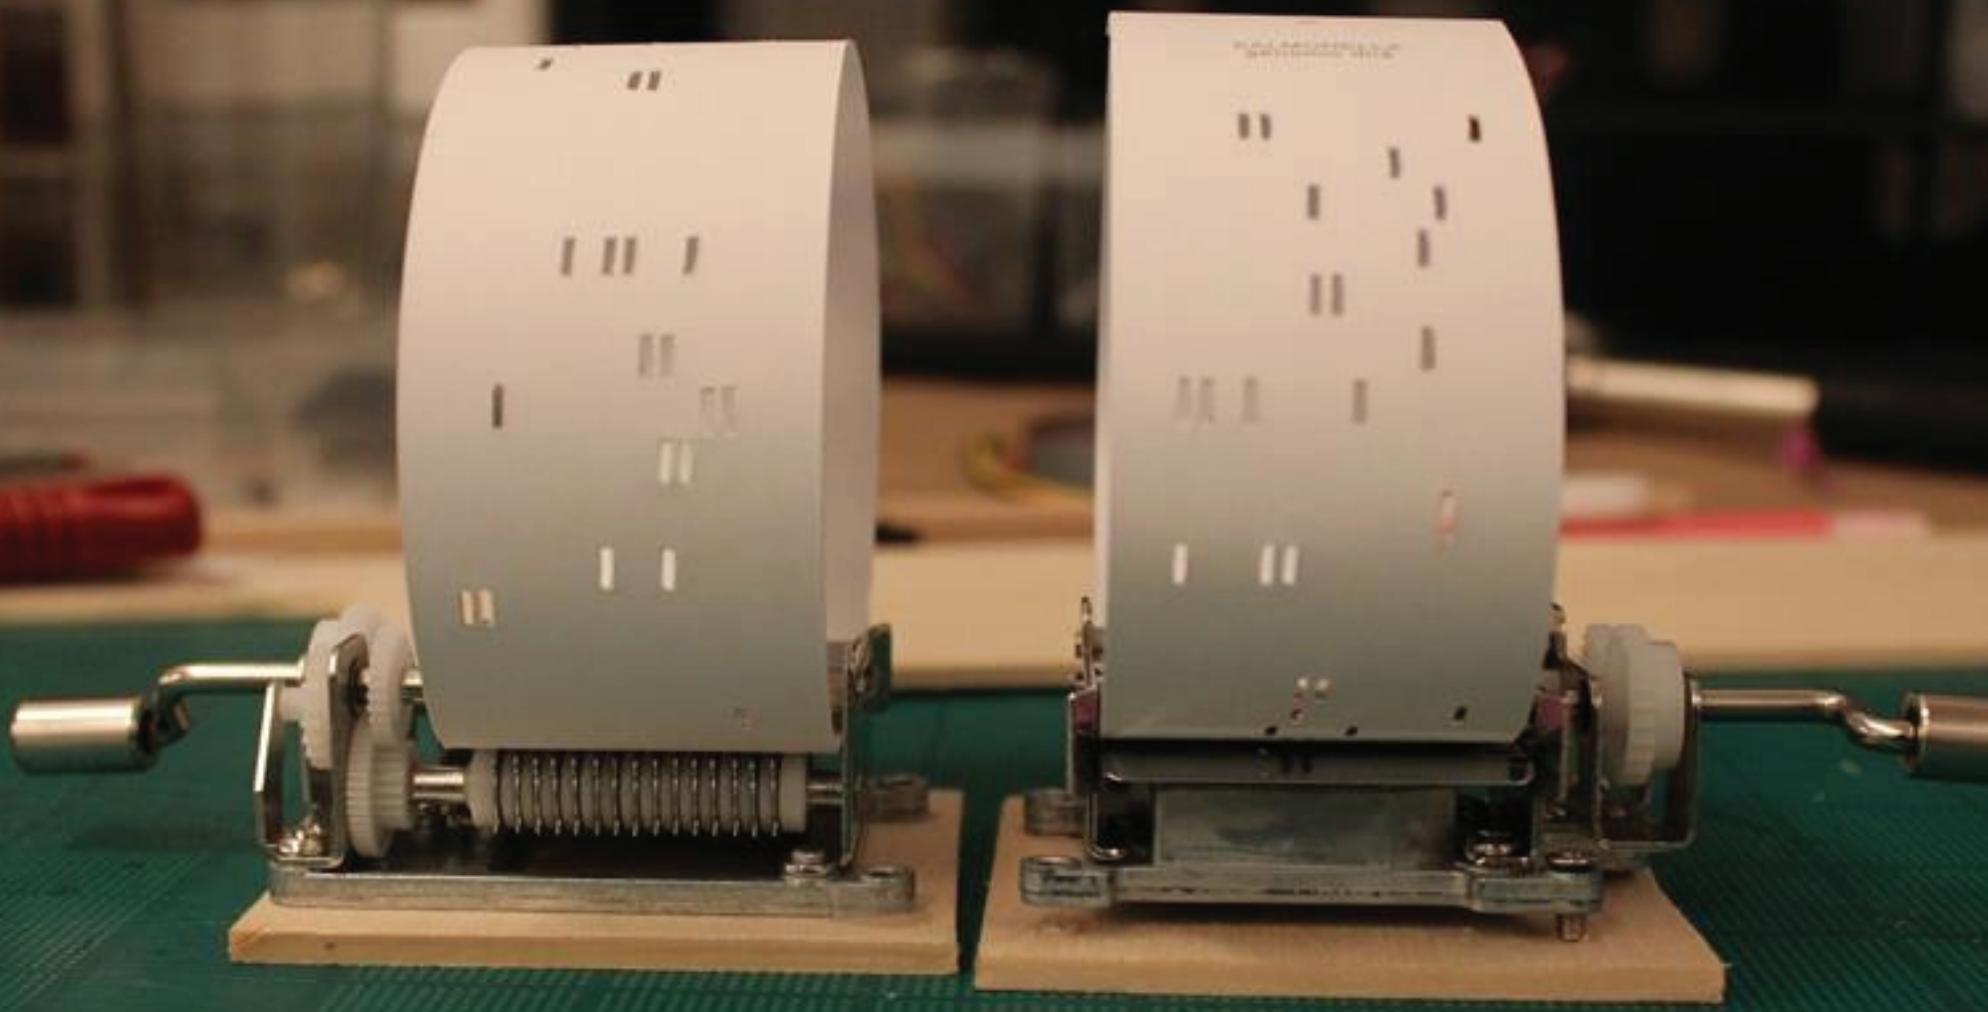

Something of the process

Hand cutted the PCR's of a parasite and Salmonella.
Testing if it works..

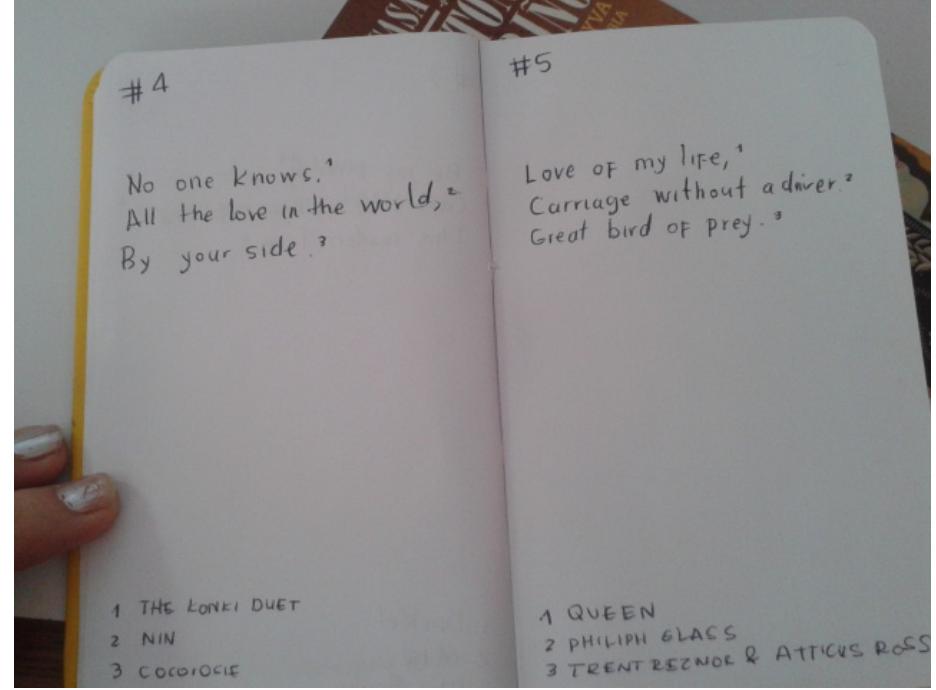

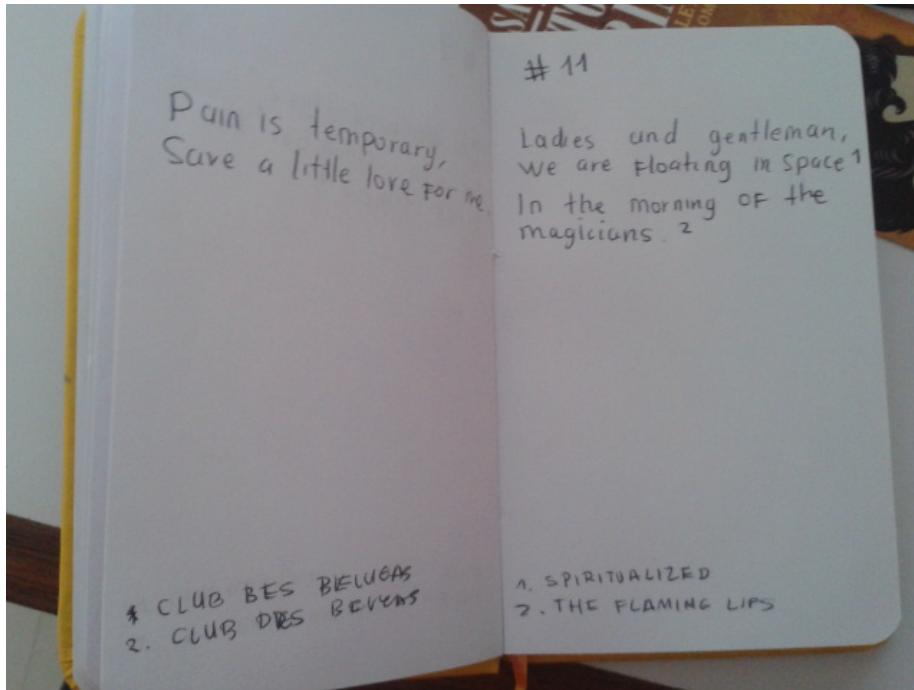

Finally, tripanozoma cruzi ready to talk with Salmonella

Life is an eternal loop

Project 2: Haiku generator from song names

I started to write some poems manually, using song names:

Project 2: Haiku generator from song names

Then Moises help me to do an automatic generator of poems based on a data base. It supposed to look like that:

haikus made
of song titles

generate a new haiku | archive | about

write your name
generating haiku...

Project 2: Haiku generator from song names

But for now looks like that:

Some of the results:

1.
For now I am winter
By your side
In the Morning of the Magicians

Olafur Arnalds
CocoRosie
The Flaming Lips

2.
Love of my life
Do you remember the firs time
Love of my life

Queen
Pulp
Queen

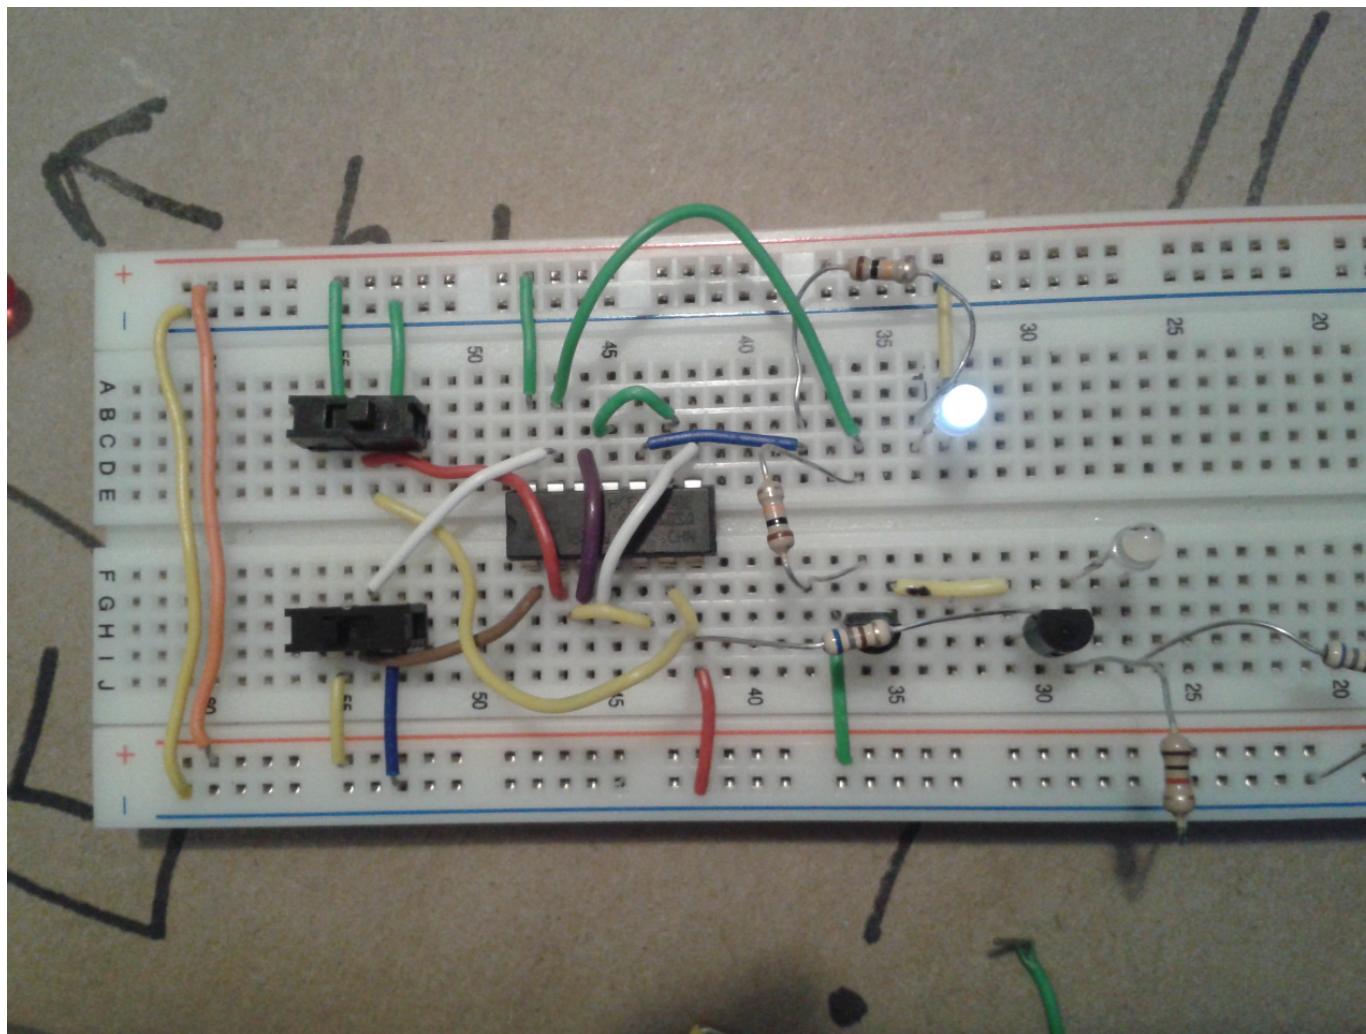

3.
Carriage without a driver
For now I am winter
Be my friend

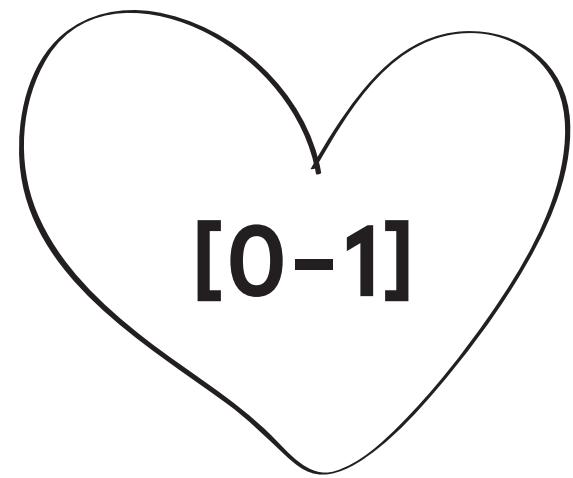

Philip Glass
Olafur Arnalds
Darkel

2.
An aborted beggining
Stormy Weather
Your silent face

Nils Framhs
Billie Holiday
New Order

Also I made a 1 bit computer adder. (proud of that)

Thank you!
